Free speech on the move for summit

SECURITY A new location is being sought for people who want to make their voices heard during next month's G20 summit in Toronto.

What is being called a "designated speech area" was going to be set up in Trinity Bellwoods Park, just off the downtown core. But security officials say they have decided to look for another site after hearing from people in the area.

The G20 summit is being held June 26-27 at the Metro Toronto Convention Centre.

Record-setting burger Would you like fries with that?

JOHN R. KENNEDY/FOR METRO TORONTO

Celebrity chef Ted Reader pops open a bottle of sparkling wine Thursday to celebrate the 268-kilogram hamburger he grilled in Yonge-Dundas Square. The giant burger, which was topped with lettuce, onions, tomatoes, pickles and 54 pounds of cheese, was auctioned for $7,500 to businessman Bulent Pakdil to benefit Camp Bucko for young burn survivors. It broke the Guinness World Record of 84 kilograms, but Reader says they still have to wait for Guinness to give them the official nod that they've claimed the record.

X marks protest

The exclusion of abortion in Prime Minister Stephen Harper's G8 maternal-health initiative had tempers flaring in the Ontario legislature Thursday.

NDP Leader Andrea Horwath and two female colleagues interrupted the start of question period by standing up and covering their mouths with a piece of paper marked with an X.

The protest was meant to draw attention to federal funding cuts to women's groups, which the NDP claim is Harper's way of silencing critics who dare to question his policies. Heckled by a Liberal backbencher, Horwath, France Gelinas and Cheri DiNovo stood in silence until the Sergeant-at-Arms took away their props.

"Women across Canada refuse to be silenced about abortion or any other issue that ..." Horwath said, before her microphone was cut off by Speaker Steve Peters.

Babysitter caught in middle

ALBERTA A teenage babysitter once called a hero for saving two young boys in her care is caught in the middle of what seems to be a liability battle between insurance companies.

"It's crazy," said Ray Braybrook, father of 14-year-old Aaliyah, who pulled the boys from a house fire in 2007 and now faces a lawsuit over it.

Aaliyah and her family lived near the family of Doug Mills in Clairmont, a small village just outside the northwestern Alberta city of Grande Prairie. On July 12, 2007, the Millses hired her to look after Damien, 5, and his three-year-old brother.

According to court documents, at some point while Aaliyah was babysitting, Damien found a lighter, began playing with it and set the family home on fire.

Aaliyah, then 12, had the presence of mind to pull the boys to safety and call the fire department.

But the fire that damaged the Mills' home also destroyed the adjacent home of Ken and Diane Mills, the boys' grandparents. Last July, a lawsuit alleging negligence was filed in their name against their children.

- On April 15, Aaliyah Braybrook's name was added to the lawsuit. She is accused of not watching Damien closely enough and failing to call firefighters quickly enough.

Police offer rewards in shootings

Toronto police are offering separate $50,000 rewards and protection for information leading to arrests and convictions in two shooting deaths. The rewards are for information in the deaths of Aeon Grant, 19, and Tyrell Duffus, 22, two months apart in nearby apartment buildings in the city's north end. Both were found dead in building stairwells — Grant in December and Duffus in February. THE CANADIAN PRESS

News in brief

DEATH The province's Special Investigations Unit is probing the death of an 18-year-old man who was being chased by police on foot near York University. An SIU release says police reported that a vehicle occupant fled after the car was stopped at about 6:30 p.m. Wednesday. After a short foot pursuit, Junior Alexander Manon was taken to hospital, where he was pronounced dead. Earlier reports quoted ambulance officials as saying Manon may have suffered a heart attack. Woman overpaid $25,000 for car

The Mazda dealership in Orangeville may have given new meaning to the automaker's slogan of "zoom, zoom, zoom" for motorist Madeline Leonard.

Leonard, who is unemployed and collecting a disability pension, walked into the dealership wanting to replace the tires on her 2004 car.

By the time she left, she was on the hook for a spiffy, black 2010 Mazda6 sedan at the eye-popping price of almost $66,000, after taxes and the value of her trade-in vehicle.

That's $25,000 more than she should have paid, according to Ontario's auto regulator.

She says "Moe," the salesman, talked fast. The numbers whizzed by and before she knew it she had bought the 2010 model.

"I was overwhelmed and confused and I soon felt like I had been mistreated," the 56-year-old woman said in an interview from her small, subsidized apartment.

LUCAS OLENIUK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

A man identified as Mohammed Shaikh, the general manager of the Orangeville Mazda dealership, is shown outside the dealership. Shaikh has been charged after allegedly selling a car for nearly $25,000 more than the buyer should have paid.

The Ontario Motor Vehicle Industry Council, which regulates new and used car dealers, took action after she complained. Its investigation found she should have paid about $41,000 for the vehicle — which wasn't even new.

"In my eight years here, I haven't seen a case like this," said Carey Smith, the regulator's director of investigations. "The deal was way over the top regarding pricing."

Smith has charged Mazda of Orangeville and two senior employees with breaching Ontario legislation that protects consumers. The dealership could face a fine of up to $250,000 if found guilty.

Kien Trung, business manager at Mazda of Orangeville and one of the employees facing charges, said he did not treat Leonard improperly or make any big profits in the deal in late December.

"We didn't do anything wrong in the case of this transaction," said Trung. "We made a little bit of money on the deal. I guess she was not happy with it."

Miller threatening own LRT project: Province

LRT Mayor David Miller threatens the future of his own Transit City light rail lines by refusing to get on board with a new provincial plan that will mean TTC riders wait longer for shorter lines with fewer stops, says Transportation Minister Kathleen Wynne.

"Does he want (the projects) to stop? Because undermining the process can lead to that," she said.

It was the latest salvo in a war of words between the province and mayor over the deferral of $4 billion in funding for lines on Sheppard, Finch, Eglinton and the Scarborough RT.

The volume went up after Miller wrote Premier Dalton McGuinty Wednesday saying the city would never support a revised Metrolinx plan that cuts the lines and delays their completion to at least 2020 rather than 2016.

"That's a violation of all the people who need transit the most."
Mayor David Miller

While Miller said Thursday he was aware of "a proposal" to reduce the scope of the projects by 22.5 kilometres and 25 stops, he never agreed to it if it meant construction would be delayed.

The revised Metrolinx plan is "a big, massive cut," he said.

"They're proposing building little stubs of lines just like happened in 1995. We ended up with just the Sheppard line and, if the Metrolinx proposal goes ahead, we'll have a subway from Leaside to Forest Hill and that's a violation of all the people who need transit the most," he said.

Metrolinx CEO Rob Prichard said Thursday that, while Miller had supported the scaled-back Transit City plan once it became clear the four lines were about $2.5 billion over the $8.15 billion the province originally promised, that was before the March provincial budget pushed the timelines back.

He said there are documents that prove Miller attended meetings where the cuts were discussed.

Bloor West residents, church staff trying to outfox foxes

WILDLIFE Foxes trotting up the street, sunning themselves in backyards and skinning squirrels to feed pups are exciting residents and pets in a Bloor West Village neighbourhood.

The foxes have also dug their den next to a daycare playground.

"I am slowly going mad," resident Oksana Kuryliw said Thursday, bothered ever since a fox chased one of her three cats, Ethel, up the side of the house, across the front lawn and down the other side.

Ethel made it through the back door and "sat frozen on the dining room table for 45 minutes," said Kuryliw, who has watched a fox noisily kill and skin a squirrel in her backyard.

Scare tactics

- Trapping and shooting are not allowed. Instead, church authorities and neighbours have scattered dog hair and urine near the den, sprayed the foxes on occasion with garden hoses and kept a loud radio on over the den 24/7.

"We have been seeking information on how to get rid of them," said Ted Hawkins, a trustee of Farmer Memorial Baptist Church, where the daycare centre is located.

Nothing seems to offend the animals, including the racket of 20 small children playing two metres away.

Will calorie info spur better eating?

University of Waterloo study to examine effects of posting details on menus

Students at the University of Waterloo will soon have an edge on the rest of us when they grab lunch at the school's food court.

They'll know, from just a quick glance at the menu, whether the healthy-looking salad will do more harm to their waistlines than the meat-covered pizza.

Unless policy-makers make a sudden move, the students will be the only ones in Canada to see a restaurant list with an item's calorie content alongside its price tag.

It's all part of a new study to test whether posting nutrition information on menus affects the food choices of students and faculty and helps them make healthier selections.

The study, funded by the Canadian Cancer Society, is the first of its kind in Canada.

"This is potentially a high-profile policy issue," said the study's lead researcher David Hammond, an assistant professor at the University of Waterloo.

"The reality is Canadians are eating more and more outside the home and really don't know anything about what they're eating ... It's difficult when you can have coffee products that either have 20 calories or up to 800 calories.

Many fast-food chains in Canada voluntarily provide nutrition information either on their company websites or in a brochure at the restaurant. Consumers have to make an effort to find out Tim Hortons' BLT sandwich has 420 calories, for example, or McDonald's Caesar salad with crispy chicken has 670 calories.

Character in election limelight

COMMENTS After months of debate over bike lanes and road tolls, a new issue has captured the limelight in the race for mayor: Character.

Take a look at past comments from some mayoral candidates who are no stranger to scandal.

1 Rob Ford

City hall's most bombastic councillor is a magnet for controversy, yet neither he, nor his constituents, seem worried about it.

From calling Coun. Giorgio Mammoliti a "Ginoboy" in 2002, to lying about — and later apologizing for — drunkenly shouting profanities at a Maple Leafs game (2006) to declaring "Oriental people work like dogs ... they're slowly taking over" (in 2008), Ford is no stranger to scandal.

2 Giorgio Mammoliti

Giorgio Mammoliti, who has mused about red-light districts and calling in the army to battle gangs, has had his share of controversy. Most notably, when an MPP, he was one of the loudest critics of proposed legislation on same-sex spousal benefits.

In the legislature, Mammoliti said: "I believe children pick up from their parents and if we extend the definition of spouse and open up traditional families, those children will be influenced in a way that we'll never, ever forget."

3 George Smitherman

Furious George and his famous temper have landed Smitherman in the hot seat before.

In 2001, he called then Health Minister Tony Clement a "schoolyard pansy" for suing Dalton McGuinty after the premier accused Clement of being corrupt.

News in brief

SCHOOL In one of the fiercest school closing fights underway in the GTA, parents accuse the Durham District School Board of rushing through a decision to close Dr. F.J. Donevan Collegiate in east Oshawa, which was built for 840 students but has only 628 and is in need of repair. Even Oshawa's Chamber of Commerce has sent a letter of protest to Premier Dalton McGuinty, calling the proposal "flawed, with what appears to have been a predetermined outcome." The board is to decide May 17 if it will close the school and have students move to Eastdale Collegiate nearby.

SENTENCED A New Brunswick driver involved in a hit and run that killed a Toronto woman in a wheelchair has been sentenced to two years plus a day in prison. Darcie Victoria West, 20, had earlier pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident without stopping to render assistance and attempting to impede justice. The accident last August in Fredericton killed 33-year-old Dianne Trottier, who was on a temporary work assignment with CBC. METRO NEWS SERVICES

Shoppers offers compromise over drug reform legislation

HEALTH Shoppers Drug Mart coughed up a compromise Thursday in its dispute with the Ontario government, saying it would support the elimination of professional allowances paid to pharmacists if the province amends its legislation to reduce costs for pharmacies.

Toronto-based Shoppers, which has a big presence in Ontario, has led a highly public fight against the provincial government's proposed legislation to cut off fees that Shoppers and other pharmacists have been receiving from generic drug companies.

Jurgen Schrieber

After a nearly month-long campaign that included in-store petitions and ads in large newspapers, the chain struck a more conciliatory tone at its general shareholders meeting.

"We absolutely support lower costs," Shoppers chief executive Jurgen Schrieber said during the company's annual general meeting in Toronto.

"There's no question that's what has to be and we absolutely support there are no professional allowances ... There are just a few things we have to address."

Schreiber said Shoppers is asking the government for "fair price for services," noting that the $7-per-prescription dispensing fee reimbursement from the Ontario government falls far short of the $14 that Shoppers says it costs to fill a prescription.

But he would not say what price he considered fair.

He also wants pharmacists to be able to negotiate drug prices with commercial partners. Currently prices are regulated by the government.

Rules 'cripple' Khadr defence team: Prof

Omar Khadr's lawyers face almost insurmountable hurdles in defending the Canadian against war crimes because the military-commission process under which he is being tried is stacked against him, experts watching the proceedings in Guantanamo Bay say.

Sketch of Omar Khadr

The observations come amid fresh testimony Thursday from an interrogator, who threatened the captive teenager with stories of Afghan prisoners being gang raped in U.S. prisons to get him to talk.

The testimony was part of defence efforts to have self-incriminating statements Khadr made thrown out as the product of torture.

Still, Audrey Macklin, a University of Toronto law professor, said the rules "cripple the defence."

Macklin said the prosecution was largely relying on statements Khadr gave to "clean teams" — friendly interrogators — while the defence says the clean teams were sent in between abusive interrogations.

However, the prosecution has refused to name the interrogators who may have abused Khadr and the judge, Col. Patrick Parrish, has refused to make them testify.

New car sales to rebound in 2010, say dealers

AUTOMOTIVE Canada's new car dealers say they expect 2010 to be a rebuilding year for sales after last year's crash.

The Canadian Automobile Dealers Association says first-quarter sales have been strong, up 15 per cent over the same period last year.

For the full year, they expect an improvement of five or six per cent over last year's recessionary level. That would mean about 1.55 million new vehicle sales, still well below 2008's record 1.65 million.

The dealers' chief economist says it will likely take several more years before sales return to the pre-recession peak. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Magna decision may give Stronach more clout

Magna strongman Frank Stronach warns he might get even stronger.

Magna International Inc. is giving shareholders a chance to end his family's absolute control over the auto parts giant.

But Stronach said this could actually give him even more influence.

Magna's founder and chairman, along with his family, has controlled the company through a stock structure that gives the Stronach Trust more votes than shareholders.

The company said Thursday the trust has now agreed to let other shareholders vote on eliminating the family's special rights and adopting a single class of stock — turning Magna into a one-share, one-vote company.

Stronach said Magna can sometimes get bogged down in bureaucracy, which can slow it down.

This new structure would give him the power to overrule this bureaucracy with the support of shareholders.

They're major in Magna: Executive vice-chair Belinda Stronach and chairman Frank Stronach chat Thursday at the annual general meeting in Markham.

"I believe I could have greater influence."
Frank Stronach

"If the proposal would be accepted by the shareholders, then I believe I could have greater influence, because then I'm in the same boat as the shareholders," Stronach told the annual meeting Thursday.

"Then I could say to the shareholders, 'Look, if management gets a little crazy, if we get too much bureaucracy' — because sometimes we have a lot of bureaucracy … I could say, 'Look, I've got to sell my shares,' because I would not participate in something which I know will not advance."

Magna reported a $223-million US first-quarter profit Thursday.

Deadline looms for Afghan detainee deal

The Conservative government and opposition parties may not be able to meet Tuesday's deadline for a deal on Afghan detainee documents.

House of Commons Speaker Peter Milliken gave parties until Tuesday to agree on how to view all documents uncensored, while protecting national security.

They continue to inch toward an agreement, but Liberal House leader Ralph Goodale says they may have to ask for an extension. He says that's not unreasonable given the importance of the issue.

"It's dealing with the Canadian public interest in a serious way and we take that responsibility seriously," Goodale said Thursday, following the third meeting of negotiators from all parties. Failure to resolve the matter among themselves would prompt a contempt of Parliament motion against the government, which could trigger a court challenge or even an election.

> "It's dealing with the Canadian public interest in a serious way and we take that responsibility seriously."
> Ralph Goodale

Earlier this week, the parties expressed optimism that a deal could be reached by Friday. But opposition negotiators were more cautious Thursday after finally receiving a concrete proposal from the government, saying they need time to reflect on the proposal.

While they wouldn't disclose details, opposition negotiators confirmed all parties have so far agreed that a small committee — made up of at least one MP from each party, all sworn to secrecy — should view all relevant documents.

The files relate to allegations that prisoners were tortured by Afghan authorities after being turned over by Canadian soldiers.

The parties have yet to agree on how to resolve any disagreement that may arise over which documents can be disclosed publicly without jeopardizing national security.

Helena Guergis is asking the Conservatives to reverse their decision to drop her as the candidate in Simcoe-Grey. She also wants the party to let her clear her name.

Guergis makes an appeal to party

SCANDAL Helena Guergis is not going down without a fight. The former junior cabinet minister wrote to the Conservative party, asking it to reverse a decision to drop her as the candidate in the Ontario riding of Simcoe-Grey.

Guergis said she's formally appealing the decision, and wants the party to let her clear her name and rejoin the Conservative caucus.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper booted her from caucus in March, after allegations of tax evasion and the potential existence of compromising photos. Harper also referred the matter to the RCMP, but the Mounties have not confirmed whether an investigation is moving ahead.

"There have been endless rumours and allegations unfairly levelled against me," said Guergis.

Quebec minister booted

Credit card dooms Tomassi

The axe has fallen on the most controversial minister in Quebec's scandal-plagued government.

Tony Tomassi has been booted from cabinet and expelled from the Liberal caucus — and the provincial police have been called in to investigate him.

Premier Jean Charest said he turfed Tomassi after learning he had used, while he was a member of the legislature but not yet a cabinet minister, a credit card belonging to a private security firm.

That security firm is now at the centre of one of several allegations of illegal fundraising dogging the Charest government.

"Mr. Tomassi confirmed that he used for a certain period of time this card belonging to (the company) BCIA," Charest told reporters.

"These are troubling facts that raise questions."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Charest's woes

Quebec Premier Jean Charest's problems are not limited to the minister he turfed. Also on his plate:

- Four of his ministers are being probed for fundraising irregularities.
- There are questions about his own $75,000-a-year bonus funded by the Liberal party.
- He faces widespread calls for a public inquiry into corruption.

Montreal Massacre survivor Nathalie Provost takes a moment Thursday to remember after a Parliament Hill memorial ceremony. Provost was shot four times.

Police back gun registry

CRIME Three top police groups came together Thursday to defend the long-gun registry.

The Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police, the Canadian Police Association and the Canadian Association of Police Boards came out against a private member's bill that aims to scrap the registry.

The heads of all three groups said perceptions of the registry are rife with misconceptions.

They said it's not the billion-dollar boondoggle it has been made out to be.

It's now under RCMP control, it's well run and it costs taxpayers just $4 million per year, they said, adding police used it 3.8 million times last year. They said it saves lives.

Toronto Police Chief William Blair said police leaders "coast-to-coast" support the registry.

"I would not suggest to you that that support is unanimous … But every other police leader … has recognized its importance to public safety …"

On Parliament Hill, registry proponents held a ceremony marking the Montreal Massacre and urging the Tory government to keep the registry.

It was established in 1996, seven years after a rifle-wielding Marc Lépine gunned down 28 people at École Polytechnique, killing 14 women.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Commons battle

- A bill to ban the gun registry has passed two readings in the Commons with support from eight Liberal MPs and one-third of the NDP caucus.
- A third passage will send it to the Senate where a Tory plurality makes its adoption much more likely.

In contempt?

Liberal MP warns Tory minister

Environment Minister Jim Prentice might find himself in contempt of Parliament if his department doesn't clear a backlog of late annual reports.

Liberal MP Derek Lee said Prentice has until next month to get Environment Canada to deliver four years of overdue documents.

If the reports don't arrive soon, Lee said he'll ask Parliament to find Prentice in contempt.

Jim Prentice

"I'd go to the floor of the House and say that this is a flagrant failure," Lee said Thursday.

The veteran Toronto-area MP added: "If it's not here before the summer, I'd ... want to have a firm date commitment. I'd be checking on this some time about the 1st of June. And I'd be prepared to get up in June if needed."

Government departments are required by law to report to Parliament each year, but Environment Canada officials acknowledge they are in arrears.

"Environment Canada ... for a lot of reasons fell behind on reporting to Parliament, which is unacceptable, fell behind on a number of different legislative requirements," department official Cynthia Wright told the Commons public accounts committee.

Wright, an acting assistant deputy minister, said there's now a group within the department that stays on top of reporting to Parliament.

She told the committee the overdue reports should be ready soon. Lee warned Wright and other department officials they're running out of time.

"At some point, your minister, your department is going be looking at something on the floor of the House of Commons."

Whale of a tale in Van City

SEA LIFE Forget worms. The early bird catches the whale in Vancouver.

A spokesman at the coast guard detachment at the mouth of Vancouver's False Creek confirmed a wandering grey whale returned to the narrow and busy waterway early Thursday morning. But he says a vessel wasn't tasked to follow the wayward whale and reports of sightings petered out within an hour, so the mammal likely mosied on.

On Wednesday, a young grey whale cruised into the dead-end waterway, delighting visitors who crowded the seawall and the docks of Granville Island to catch a glimpse.

Caitlin Birdsall of the B.C. Cetacean Sighting Network said it's not unusual for grey whales to make pit-stops in the area on their migration north, but it's exciting for people to see the massive ocean mammals so close to the city's downtown.

MEXICO Unidentified gunmen murdered two amateur soccer coaches and a pregnant woman in Juarez, in northern Mexico Thursday. The attackers opened fire indiscriminately, witnesses said, killing the two 26-year-old men. The woman, who was married to one of the coaches and eight months pregnant, was shot several times.

Juarez, which borders El Paso, Texas, is one of the most violent places in Mexico, with several drug cartels that fight for supremacy and are behind most of the more than 2,6000 deaths last year and nearly 900 so far in 2010. The attack is the third in less than week related to amateur soccer in Mexico.

Tories take most seats

But U.K. Conservatives fall short of majority, according to projections

David Cameron's rejuvenated Conservatives captured far more seats than Prime Minister Gordon Brown's battered Labour Party but failed to win an absolute majority Thursday in Britain's national election, according to television projections.

The exit polls did not bode well for Brown, Britain's prime minister since 2007, and triggered uncertainty over who will form the next government. The country's top three parties — the Conservatives, Labour and the Liberal Democrats — immediately began jockeying to form alliances. An analysis by Britain's main television stations suggested the Conservatives will win 305 of the 650 House of Commons seats, short of the 326 seats needed for a majority. Labour was seen winning 255 seats and the Liberal Democrats 61, far less than had been expected after their support surged during the campaign. If the results bear out these projections, a period of political wrangling and uncertainty is ahead for one of the world's largest economies — a prospect that could unsettle global markets already reeling from the Greek debt crisis. Official: Suspect made Manhattan test run

NEW YORK A day before driving a sport utility vehicle with a rigged homemade bomb into Times Square, a Pakistani-American made a test drive into the heart of the city, dropped off a getaway car blocks from his target and took a train home to Connecticut, a law enforcement official told The Associated Press.

The official's account of Faisal Shahzad, who took no visitors in the shabby apartment where he hoarded a gun and low-grade fireworks for months, bolsters a growing theory that he prepared a terrorist attack in the United States on his own once he moved back to the U.S. from five months in his native Pakistan, law enforcement officials say. But while no other suspects have been identified in the U.S., authorities are seriously investigating whether foreign groups in Pakistan or elsewhere financed the 30-year-old ex-budget analyst's failed terrorist plot against New York, two law enforcement officials said. Dutch pay us tribute

Harper among dignitaries remembering liberation of Holland

The Dutch prime minister paid a moving tribute Thursday to the Canadian liberators of Holland in a ceremony with Prime Minister Stephen Harper and a clutch of Canadian veterans.

Jan Pieter Balkenende summoned the memory of a 17-year-old private from Vancouver who gave his life in 1944 during the battle that opened the port of Antwerp and the path to allied victory. The Dutch leader said the almost 1,000 Canadians buried at a military cemetery near the Dutch-Belgium border died in the "grimmest, fiercest, most savage battle fought by the Canadian army in the Second World War."

Balkenende said Canadian students visiting the Netherlands "will feel the eternal gratitude of the Dutch people for the bravery of the Canadian soldiers." Harper, speaking a day after Holland celebrated the 65th anniversary of its liberation, picked up on that theme in one of the most eloquent speeches of his prime ministership.

"When the living come to salute the dead, our words speak loudest to those whose lives still lay ahead," Harper said. "In this age-old act of remembrance, we gather not to call out a requiem, for those for whom we speak are not here ... we have come together to greet comrades while yet we may to declare to new generations that — in such a place as this — you may understand how our land, Canada, gives birth to greatness."

Manicure in the ICU

Complaints over makeshift hospital beauty salon

Two county hospital workers in Los Angeles were placed on paid leave after anonymous complaints they set up a makeshift beauty salon for fellow employees in an intensive care ward for newborns, authorities said.

The two complaints said manicures and eyebrow waxes were given to nurses and doctors in the neonatal intensive care unit at county-run Olive View-UCLA Medical Center.

"The smell of acetone permeates the back area of the NICU," according to one complaint obtained by the Los Angeles Times and reported Thursday. The same complaint alleged a doctor "had a French manicure right on the high-frequency ventilator."

No babies in the intensive care unit were harmed, officials said.

The complaints were made to the Joint Commission, a non-profit group that accredits the hospital.

The county Department of Health Services sent an investigator to the hospital Tuesday and has placed two employees on paid leave while it investigates.

"We've quickly taken decisive action," said Carol Meyer, the health department's chief network officer.

One complaint also alleged the neonatal ICU is understaffed and unqualified doctors and staff made mistakes and failed to report them.

Those allegations also are being investigated, Meyer said.

"There's no patient who is unsafe," she said.

Hospital also investigating

- Carolyn Rhee, the chief executive of the hospital, says they are also investigating the complaints, and "the first concern of the hospital is always patient safety and quality of care."

New oil spill cleanup device arrives

SPILL A boat carrying a huge concrete-and-steel contraption designed to siphon off the oil fouling the Gulf of Mexico arrived Thursday at the spot in the sea where a blown-out well is spewing hundreds of thousands of litres a day.

Another boat with a crane plans to start lowering the box to the seafloor later in the day. Engineers hope it will be the best short-term solution to controlling the leak that has only worsened since it began two weeks ago. Thick, tar-like oil surrounded the boat for as far as the eye could see.

Pentagon bars evangelist

U.S. evangelist Franklin Graham prayed outside the Pentagon Thursday, after his invitation to a prayer service inside was withdrawn due to his comments insulting Muslims.

"It looks like Islam has gotten a pass," he told reporters. "They are able to have their services, but just because I disagree ... I'm excluded."

In 2001, Graham, the son of famed evangelist Billy Graham, described Islam as evil. More recently, he said he finds Islam offensive and wants Muslims to know that Jesus Christ died for their sins.

The Pentagon's chaplain office called those comments inappropriate and, at the request of the Army, withdrew Graham's invitation to attend a multi-denominational "National Day of Prayer" service that was held in the Defence Department auditorium.

He came anyway, arriving with his party of a half dozen people forming a circle on the sidewalk and praying.

They stood there for about five minutes, heads bowed, as people arriving for work passed by.

Then the group walked to the Pentagon's Sept. 11, 2001 memorial, roughly a couple of hundred feet away, where media had gathered because it is one of the few places were cameras are allowed on the Pentagon property.

There, Graham held a news conference that lasted nearly twice as long as the prayer. Asked why he had come, Graham said it was to pray for the men and women serving at the warfront, including his son, who he said had already been wounded in Iraq and now serves in Afghanistan.

He said he doesn't believe "all religions are equal" and that there is only "one way to God" — and that is through Jesus.

Asked if he still believes Islam is evil, he said: "I believe the way they treat women is evil, yes I do."

And, can he understand how some of his comments would be offensive to Muslims? "Oh, I'm sure," he said. "But I find what they teach and what they preach and what's on the Internet — I find that to be offensive, too."

While Graham spoke outside, some 80 people attended a service inside the Pentagon that included Roman Catholic, Jewish, Muslim and Protestant chaplains. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In defence of Toronto the good

UrbanCompass

This is a defence of Toronto and the people who live here.

The city engaged in a frenzy of self-recrimination over the recent mugging of a 79-year-old on the Bloor-Danforth subway line and the apparent failure of other passengers to come to his aid. For the record, police officials in the days after the incident described the attack on Yusuf Hizel as a "blitz" and a "split-second" robbery executed in the seconds before the subway doors opened. Other passengers, they say, had little time to respond. And one of those passengers insists he did press the yellow alarm strip, though nothing happened.

None of this, however, stopped critics from weighing in on the uncaring, apathetic, chicken-hearted nature of Torontonians. On newspaper websites and talk radio, urban dwellers were condemned as complacent, self-centred and mean-spirited. One resident described Toronto as a city defined by "NDP, Birkenstock-wearing tree huggers, cycling people who simply do not care about others." A commentator on the Toronto Star website insisted "this would NEVER be allowed to happen in any town north of Hwy. 7."

There's a long tradition of believing the worst about cities and their inhabitants. European social theorists in the late 19th and early 20th century saw cities as places where the togetherness and kinship bonds of villages collapsed, leading to social isolation, murder, juvenile delinquency and a preoccupation with wealth and individual advantage rather than collective good.

We've clung to these perceptions despite subsequent research by sociologists who found that, in fact, cities are characterized by a thick web of relationships between people based on neighbourhoods, common interests ranging from poetry to lawn bowling, and even secondary relationships with everyone from the local butcher to the owner of the nearby corner store.

Yes, bad things happen. And yes, people can behave rudely, callously and even viciously. But that's the exception. Civility is more the norm.

Strangers stopped to help my mother when, during a visit to Toronto, she tripped and fell on Bloor Street. A homeless man returned my purse after it was stolen from the back of my chair in a bagel shop near the University of Toronto campus. I recently helped an elderly woman carry a heavy box of oranges across the street to her car when I saw her struggling with the carton outside a fruit and vegetable vendor in Koreatown.

This is the city I know, naysayers be damned.

Shoe architect's heels take a step up

A designer known as Romania's "shoe architect" has come out with a new pair of sandals that increase a woman's height by 30 centimetres.

The new shoes are being compared to skyscrapers because of their towering heels. But the price also may have something to do with it. In a nation, where the average salary is $575 a month, the hand-crafted sandals are selling for up to $1,525.

"Heels have an advantage because (many women) don't have long legs," said Mihai Albu, who's had a 20-year love affair making stilettos.

"They reposition the waist," he said in an interview earlier this week in his Bucharest atelier.

High heels have become fashionable, but Albu's are at least twice the height of ones that international designers have been flirting with for several years.

For instance, in Washington last month independent boutiques were strutting footwear that seemed revolutionary, such as apple red patent and black stiletto heels. But the platforms were only four centimetres and the red heels 11 centimetres.

"This is unusual, but I think we can expect many other fashion houses to be doing this," said Marcellous Jones, editor-in-chief of the Fashion Insider online magazine, by telephone.

VADIM GHIRDA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Romanian designer Mihai Albu displays one of his shoe creations in Bucharest.

"They are impractical, but there are women who are brave enough to wear them. They get attention for the wearer and the designer," Jones said.

Albu, a former architect, blends math, architecture and art in his creations, which are more foot sculpture than regular footwear.

He uses French leather and encrusts it with jewels, feathers, mirrors, and taps into Romanian women's perennial love affair with high heels.

Despite the price, Albu says he has received dozens of orders for his new sandals from Romania's well-heeled.

Panic selloff ends

Jittery markets recover after big plunge

North American stock markets embarked on a brief but dizzying roller-coaster ride Thursday that had all the earmarks of a classic panic selloff in the face of spreading economic turmoil in Greece.

Trading was down all day, but remained orderly until shortly after 2:30 p.m. EDT, when Wall Street, Bay Street and currency markets all suddenly pitched headlong into a blackout-inducing plunge.

The Dow Jones in New York tumbled 600 points in about six minutes to come close to a 1,000-point loss, the low point of a turbulent day for the world's most important stock market. The index later recovered to a loss of nearly 350 points at the close.

The Toronto Stock Exchange fell more than 450 points — a drop of more than four per cent — before recovering to near break-even.

"This is the kind of day we last saw in 2008," said CIBC chief economist Avery Shenfeld, referring to the beginning of the financial crisis on Wall Street that precipitated a global recession. "Everybody is trying to stay ahead of the lemmings that are jumping off the cliff."

Analysts say it's likely that technical computer-generated trading, or human error, was to blame for the sudden dip, although few doubted that markets are skittish and that volatility could return at any time. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fall and rise

- Almost as quickly as the panic set in, it vanished. The Dow Jones index recovered half its losses to close down 347.8 points. The Toronto exchange almost returned to where it started the day, down a mere 32.7 points to 11,843, while the dollar finished down 2.09 cents to 95.03 cents US.

Revenues take off for Air Canada

AIRLINES Improving business travel revenues helped Air Canada sharply narrow its losses in the first quarter as the economy continued to slowly recover in the first months of the year.

Canada's largest airline reported Thursday that premium cabin revenues grew by $58 million or 15 per cent from last year, driven by a 10.6 per cent increase in traffic.

The gains accounted for almost 70 per cent of the $84 million increase in system passenger revenues, which rose to nearly $2.1 billion.

Premium cabin yields — the price to fly a passenger per mile — improved in all markets, rising by 3.9 per cent. Lower yields in the economy cabin reduced overall pricing by 2.2 per cent across the system.

The first quarter marked an improvement from last year and sequential growth over the last six months. But it still remained well below pre-recession levels.

"Nonetheless, this is a positive indicator that business travel demand is slowly starting to return," Air Canada CEO Calin Rovinescu said.

He said the improvement demonstrated the airline's initiatives such as paid upgrade programs are starting to stick and customers are recognizing the value of its business offering.

Air Canada lost $85 million in the seasonally weak first quarter ended March 31. That compares with a net loss of $400 million a year ago. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nintendo Loss for Mario

Children walk past Nintendo's game monitors in a showroom in Tokyo. The maker of Super Mario and Pokemon games said Thursday its net profit for the fiscal year ended March 31 fell 18 per cent to 228.6 billion yen ($2.5 billion US).

Manulife Financial returns to profit

INSURANCE Returned strength in equity markets helped insurance and wealth management giant Manulife Financial Corp. post a first-quarter profit of $1.15 billion, reversing a year-earlier loss of $1.07 billion. The Toronto-based company said its earnings amounted to 64 cents per share, compared with a loss of 67 cents per share.

The company said its earnings benefited from equity market increases, the positive impact of fixed income investing activities and other investments.

Insurance sales increased 20 per cent overall with strong growth in Hong Kong, Japan, Taiwan and China. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lawrence Taylor faces rape charge

Pro Football Hall of Famer Lawrence Taylor was charged Thursday with rape for having sex with a 16-year-old runaway forced into prostitution by a man who had beaten her up, police said. Taylor, a 51-year-old former New York Giants star, paid the girl $300 US for sex, said Christopher St. Lawrence, supervisor of the town of Ramapo. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Raiders dump Russell

The Oakland Raiders released former No. 1 overall pick JaMarcus Russell, left, Thursday, ending a three-year tenure marked by his high salary and unproductive play on the field. The decision signifies that owner Al Davis finally lost patience with the immensely talented but unproductive player he drafted first overall in 2007 against the wishes of former coach Lane Kiffin. Woods breaks par on easy day at TPC

GOLF The Players Championship was such a pushover Thursday that more than half the field broke par.

Even Tiger Woods.

With scrutiny higher than after the worst tournament of his career, Woods settled down after a shaky start and didn't make a bogey until his final hole for a 2-under 70 to join the assault on the TPC Sawgrass.

J.B. Holmes and Robert Allenby led the way at 6-under 66, a stroke ahead of eight players, including Lee Westwood of England and 49-year-old Kenny Perry. In muggy conditions with only a swirling breeze late in the day, 36 players broke 70, the most for the opening round of this tournament since 1994.

Canadiens even series

(Series tied 2-2)

Penguins 2 Canadiens 3

VS

Maxim Lapierre and Brian Gionta scored early in the third period Thursday and the Montreal Canadiens held on for a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins to even their Eastern Conference semifinal.

Trailing 2-1 going into the final period, the Canadiens lifted the noise from the Bell Centre crowd of 21,273 to deafening levels as they came back to beat the defending Stanley Cup champions after having been thoroughly outskated and outshot through the first 40 minutes.

Tom Pyatt scored in the first period for Montreal while Max Talbot and Chris Kunitz replied for the Penguins.

Jaroslav Halak, who made 33 saves, stopped Pens star Evgeni Malkin on a late breakaway to preserve the win.

Marc-Andre Fleury faced 25 shots for the Penguins.

The best-of-seven series is tied 2-2 with Game 5 set for Saturday night in Pittsburgh.

Montreal Canadien Maxim Lapierre celebrates his third-period goal Thursday against the Pittsburgh Penguins in Montreal. The Canadiens won 3-2 to even the best-of-seven series.

Sports in brief

NFL Adam (Pacman) Jones agreed to a two-year deal with the Cincinnati Bengals Thursday, putting the troubled cornerback on a team with a history of giving players second chances.

NBA Cavaliers star LeBron James says a few days of rest and treatment has helped his injured right elbow. James, who has been bothered by a sprain and bone bruise, made it through practice Thursday without feeling any pain. He participated in all contact drills.

NBA Celtics general manager Danny Ainge was fined $25,000 US by the NBA Thursday for tossing a towel to try to distract Cavaliers forward J.J. Hickson as Hickson shot a free throw. Ainge, who was sitting courtside under the Cavs' basket, flipped a white towel over his head during the third quarter of Monday night's playoff game between Boston and Cleveland.

Man U coming to Toronto

Manchester United announced a four-city North American tour Thursday that will include a game July 16 against Celtic at the Rogers Centre. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Landscape expands

It'sCalledFootball

This is the time when a columnist is supposed to coyly remind the reader he had it first.

The columnist code of ethics (of which there are none) dictates one should firmly remind the readers who broke the story, walk the readers through a tale of secret sources meetings and yet maintain a sense of decorum by not resorting to bragging.

When the Montreal Impact officially announces its expansion to MLS this morning, I won't be shouting from the rooftops that I originally reported this deal in November.

Instead, I'm going to sit back and smile as the Canadian soccer landscape expands.

This is a special time for those of us who grew up playing the game on rough, worn pitches and watching our teams on illegal Internet feeds. We're now witnessing wholesale changes to the Canadian game in the blink of an eye.

It's staggering when you look back at what's happened in just five years.

Canada now has three professional soccer franchises. Games are televised on national networks and there is more mainstream print coverage than any of us could have ever imagined.

Toronto FC has become the talk of the city.

Hockey-crazed Montreal put 50,000 plus people in Olympic stadium for a soccer game in February.

And Vancouver, already established as a North American leader for its deep-rooted soccer system, is on the cusp of becoming world-class when the renovation of B.C. Place and a national training centre are completed next year.

But the game isn't mainstream just yet.

Wednesday night, unannounced, a few hundred stranded footie fans gathered electronically, squinting and straining to watch an Internet feed of the Nutrilite Voyageurs Cup game between Montreal and Vancouver.

"We're now witnessing wholesale changes to the Canadian game in the blink of an eye."

Far from professional — hell, far from unprofessional — this game was brought to you by a webcam and a microphone pointed at a flat screen TV.

It was gritty, it was ghetto, it was Canadian soccer.

As the saying goes, the revolution will not be televised.

But make no mistake, by the time Montreal joins MLS in 2012, it will be.

Magic build lead on Hawks

Maybe all the Orlando Magic needed after a slow start was a slap in the face. Dwight Howard came back from a bloody nose to finish with 29 points and 17 rebounds, and the Magic beat the Atlanta Hawks 112-98 Thursday night to take a 2-0 lead in the Eastern Conference semifinal series. Wings stay alive

(Sharks lead 3-1)

San Jose 1 Detroit 7

VS

Johan Franzen doubled his previous playoff scoring total in one game.

Perfect timing for the Detroit Red Wings.

Franzen had a natural hat trick in a 3:26 span of the first period, scored a fourth goal in the third, and set a team playoff record with six points as Detroit stayed alive with a 7-1 rout of the San Jose Sharks Thursday night in Game 4 of the Western Conference semifinals.

"Hopefully, I can get some confidence and the team can get some confidence," Franzen said. "I've been struggling on the goal-scoring side."

Franzen had just two goals in the first 10 playoff games. The burly forward known as "Mule" scored 25 times the previous two post-seasons for the two-time defending Western Conference champions.

"Mule is one of those guys — like (Joe) Pavelski — when you get hot, you just shoot the puck," Detroit coach Mike Babcock said.

San Jose will host Game 5 Saturday night with another chance to advance to hockey's final four for the second time in franchise history and first since 2004.

"Maybe this spanking will wake us up to know we're not out of the woods," Sharks coach Todd McLellan said. "I'm saying it. We have to respond to it."

Franzen was originally credited with scoring the first goal 5:40 in, but the goal was changed to Todd Bertuzzi. That prevented Franzen from tying the NHL playoff record with four goals in a period.

Eveland lifts Jays to victory

MLB RESULTS

Blue Jays 2 White Sox 0

VS

Dana Eveland allowed two hits in seven scoreless innings and the Toronto Blue Jays extended their winning streak to five games Thursday night by beating the Chicago White Sox 2-0.

Eveland (3-1) was in control throughout on a chilly 7 C night and outduelled another lefty, John Danks (3-1). Eveland gave up a leadoff infield single to Juan Pierre in the first and single to Alexei Ramirez in the fourth, while walking four and striking out three.

Scott Downs pitched a spotless eighth. Chicago's Alex Rios got a double when Blue Jays shortstop Alex Gonzalez couldn't hold his high pop behind second with one out in the ninth, but Kevin Gregg then struck out Carlos Quentin and Ramirez to get his eighth saves in as many chances. Cup should be magic

"Anything can happen when national pride and sport collide on the global stage."

There's just about one month to go until the wildly anticipated FIFA World Cup kicks off in South Africa. For so many fans it promises deliverance from the ordinary even gossipy progression of professional soccer, or football, or whatever it is you want to call it.

It will be a welcome break from the scandals involving French star Franck Ribery and the fretting over injuries to a litany of players such as Spanish striker Fernando Torres. No, this summer, the World Cup will provide some much needed magic and passion.

It's happened throughout the tournament's history and has every chance of unfolding for the first time on African soil where the vast majority of people in a country still wrestling with economic and racial issues are devoted to the sport.

In the past there's been Diego Maradona and the "Hand of God" goal, which sank England in 1986. Long before Zinedine Zidane was vilified for a head butt against Italy, he led France to an improbable World Cup victory at home by scoring two goals against Brazil. Zidane became an instant national hero, his image projected on the Arc de Triomphe.

Lesser known is the greatest David and Goliath story in World Cup history.

In the Brazilian gathering of 1950 a bunch of part-time players from the United States knocked off England, the acknowledged "Kings of Football," and scuttled coronation plans.

"Sometimes the better team loses," figured 83-year-old midfielder Walter Bahr as he remembered the 1-0 shocker conjured up by a collection of dishwashers, postal workers and teachers.

"I always felt that was one of the top things about sports. You can't pick the winner before hand you have to play the game."

It's the lure of what many call the greatest tournament of all. Not everything is scripted and anything can happen when national pride and sport collide on the global stage.

"Yes, it's my only claim to fame," Bahr chuckled. "People think I was a great player. I was just like everybody else … but I was a World Cup player!"

Thankfully, only the players can deliver the magic once the World Cup begins.

Doyle up the ballads and blood

Crowe picked Canadian singer for Merry Men role

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

Movie feature

Robin Hood opens next Friday

Alan Doyle is admittedly one lucky dude. After all, the Newfoundland-born musician's band Great Big Sea has been a Canadian institution ever since the successful release of their 1993 self-titled debut album. But now, Doyle can call himself a movie star as well.

"I've been holding out for 40 years for the right chance," joked Doyle about his role in Robin Hood alongside Russell Crowe. "I picked a good one, didn't I?"

As it turns out, Doyle was chosen for the role. Having met Crowe in Toronto while the actor was filming Cinderella Man, the duo became fast friends over their love of music. As the tale goes, while Crowe was initially reading the script for Robin Hood, he discovered one of the Merry Men was a balladeer.

"He's done a bunch of movies since I've known him — he's never asked me to do one," said Doyle. "(But) I could see Russell reading the script and thinking 'hey, we need a dude who can play the lute, sing and write ballads on the spot and play Celtic instruments and his name is Allan A'Dayle…' I would've been pissed off if he hadn't thought of me to be honest!"

Doyle isn't just making a passing cameo either. The Newfoundlander underwent weeks of rigorous training with weapons and horses for huge epic battle sequences as one of Hood's fighting Merry Men. Further, he was asked to compose a few songs for the movie.

"(I got) three or four credits in there which is a thrill," said Doyle. "(But) as the years go by, I will exaggerate that."

Doyle won't be able to rest for long. After the film hits theatres, Great Big Sea will prepare to release their next album in July and follow it up with a tour.

But with a potential cinematic franchise looming in Robin Hood, one wonders if the singer doesn't have at least one eye on a career in movies.

"I don't know, I've been pretty lucky with things my whole life," said Doyle humbly before quickly insisting: "I got this one by kind of not looking for it and that would be my tactic for the next one."

Babies follows the lives of four little ones from different parts of the world.

The kids are all right

Babies

Director: Thomas Balmes
Classification: G
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

IAN GORMELY
for Metro Canada

Babies is a classic example of a film that says more by doing less. Of course, just what it says is up for debate.

French director Thomas Balmes uses a deceptively simple concept, filming four babies in four different countries to explore the different ways we raise children across the world, from birth to first steps. There's no narration, interviews, inter or subtitles.

Just 79 minutes of babies sleeping, crying, crawling, walking, pooping and, in one case, escaping the machinations of a curious goat.

Even the parents are shot mostly from the neck down, their dialogue muffled by ambient sound in Balmes's Charlie Brown world.

But putting the focus firmly on the kids ensures that nothing is sugarcoated or glossed over and the long shots don't cut away when the baby starts to bawl. You're right there with mom and dad, just wishing that the thing would shut up.

Balmes says that he has no agenda; he's not saying there's any one way to rear kids. But the two extremes in environment and culture his cast of titular characters are raised in — San Francisco and Tokyo, on one side, and tiny villages in Namibia and Mongolia on the other — reveals that he's got some serious reservations about the overscheduled, over-stimulated we way of raise or children.

But the lack of narration allows viewers to take what they want from this film.

Two hours of cute babies? You got it. Or, if you'd rather, a political treatise on the divergent values of the First and developing worlds.

Most viewers will probably take a little from Column A and a little from Column B, and enjoyment will have more to do with your general feelings towards the titular characters.

Those with kids may well look at Babies as a nostalgic romp through the high points of early parenthood.

Those of us without, particularly if contemplating whether now's the time to pull the baby trigger, will find themselves hopping on a bus to the nearest monastery.

Bansky has last laugh in Exit

Exit Through The Gift Shop

Director: Banksy
Classification: STC
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕⊕

ADAM NAYMAN
for Metro Canada

The ever-elusive Banksy.

REVIEW 2010 probably won't yield another film as slippery as Exit Through the Gift Shop, the first feature — I hesitate to call it a "documentary" — by the well-known British visual artist Banksy.

For the uninitiated, Banksy is a kind of guerilla postmodernist whose attention-grabbing stunts — like planting his own pictures in the Louvre, or painting a mural on a West Bank security wall — are balanced against a rigorous program of public self-effacement.

Issuing statements through PR people and avoiding his own gallery openings, Banksy strives to be a cipher, with the intention of letting his dazzling, often hilarious work speak for itself.

It's thus difficult to take anything in the dazzling, hilarious Exit Through the Gift Shop at face value. The film purports to be an inverted profile piece, the account of how a Los Angeles-based filmmaker Thierry Guetta set out to make a film about the street art movement but rerouted his ambitions towards making art of his own.

In the process, he mutated from voyeur to subject — the perfect subject, actually, for a film about the shifting vicissitudes of an art establishment recently prepared to hail amateur vandals as conquering heroes.

Banksy actually appears in Exit Through the Gift Shop in blurred-out form, taking sighing responsibility for transforming Guetta from star-struck scenester into a Neo-Warholian monster (complete with his own brand-name moniker: "Mr. Brainwash.") But there are also hints that Guetta is at least a partial collaborator in the proceedings, and that what Banksy is really kidding are worn-out documentary conventions.

Revolution of his own

Baruchel gets his Trotsky on

Canadian actor Jay Baruchel fights to bring "socialism" to his high school in the Montreal-based comedy The Trotsky.

RICHARD CROUSE
for Metro Canada

Jay Baruchel is Captain Canuck.

Despite having the kind of break-out Hollywood success most actors could only dream of — starring in the critically lauded She's Out of My League, the number one hit How to Train Your Dragon and headlining Disney's upcoming Sorcerer's Apprentice — the patriotic Canadian (he has a maple leaf tattooed over his heart) hasn't taken up digs in Los Angeles or New York. In fact, he still lives in Montreal where his latest movie was shot.

"It was genius," he says of making The Trotsky in his hometown. "If I go away to make movies it means I have to say goodbye to my mom, my cat, my friends, my bed, all that stuff, so to be able to go to my house every night and flip channels with my roommates and pet the cat was crazy."

"(In high school), I was incredibly impassioned and prone to crying and punching stuff and throwing fits and getting really angry so I had to channel that."
Jay Baruchel

In the comedy, directed by actor-turned director Jacob Tierney, he plays the budding Bolshevik Leon Bronstein, a 17 year old who believes he is the reincarnation of revolutionary Leon Trotsky.

"When I talked to Jacob about this I told him I was scared to play a character 10 years younger than me," he says. "I was trying to leave that behind but then I came to the Ferris conclusion. Ferris Bueller's Day Off is my favorite movie of all time and I realized that Leon kind of is Ferris in regards to the way he affects change in other people's lives and goes to war against his principal."

The Trotsky opens next Friday

Baruchel may have used Ferris Bueller as a muse but to fully round out the character he cobbled together a "bunch of subtle tiles in the mosaic that make up this weird guy."

First he looked back at himself. "In high school you just care about everything so much," he said. "I was incredibly impassioned and prone to crying and punching stuff and throwing fits and getting really angry so I had to channel that."

Then he added in some physical comedy. "I had this overriding idea that because he's such an odd bird there was room for some physical comedy and that's why I walk out of every scene like a cartoon character."

More than anything, however, he says he's thrilled to portray a side of Montreal that rarely gets seen on screen.

"If you watch English movies from the rest of Canada you'd never know that there are Anglos in Montreal," he says. "If you watch French movies from Quebec you'd never know there are Anglos in Montreal. So either way we're forgotten, but we're back! Anglo Montrealers are back everyone! We're coming at ya!"

Catherin Keener stars in Please Give.

Please Give actors dig into smart script

Please Give
Director: Nicole Holofcener
Stars: Catherine Keener, Rebecca Hall
Classification: STC
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

REVIEW Please Give is a film about guilt. It focuses on a middle-aged married couple (Catherine Keener and Oliver Platt) who make their living buying furniture from bereaved relatives.

They also live next to a dying old woman and intend to purchase her apartment to expand their own living space. The always wonderful Keener is the centre of the film and she's overcome by guilt, both as a result of what she does for a living and the fact that she has money when others don't.

Her insistence on giving cash to homeless people to the chagrin of her teenager daughter becomes a running gag.

Yes, a gag, because despite what that plot description might suggest, Please Give is a comedy. It's just a heartbreaking one with humour rooted in the sadness of the characters and their identifiably petty problems.

Writer/director Nicole Holofcener never goes for obvious laughs or even pushes for emotional climaxes. Her movies are about poignant and humorous observations about contemporary life rather than plot or spectacle.

She fills Please Give with such scenes and while the final movie might not feel particularly satisfying because there's seemingly no big emotional pay off or clear thesis, that's fine. There are so many oddly touching or hilarious moments and well-written characters that there's really no need for anything else.

Catherine Keener stars in the film and is as excellent as always, mining the pathos of her role without ever losing sight of the comedy.

The same can be said of Oliver Platt, Rebecca Hall, Amanda Peet, and everyone else who appears on screen. The actors all contribute some of their best work because they have a screenplay of uncommon intelligence to work with.

Common takes lead in Wright

DOROTHY ROBINSON
for Metro Canada

Over the past few years, Common — best-known as a successful hip-hop artist — has been quietly building up his acting resume with small roles in Smoking Aces, Wanted and Terminator Salvation. Next weekend marks his leap into leading man status as Scott McKnight, a professional basketball player who falls a physical therapist (played by Queen Latifah) in Just Wright. He lets us know why he loves being a starter.

Q This is a departure from the hardened characters you've played in your past films. Was it difficult switching over to a romantic lead?

A This is not only my first romantic, leading character — it's my first leading role, period. I thought highly of my experience. I love being able to come in every day to act.

A lot of times, I'm in movies and they might call me in and I might not even work that day. So it's fun to come in and be a part of this, like, equivalent to a basketball game. You know — being able to play in the game and be a starter.

Q You're in nearly every scene. Does seeing your face on-screen all the time rattle you?

A To be honest, I'm critiquing every little part. I do that even when I only have two lines (in a film). It's fun to have my friends and family come to a movie and not have to wait two hours before I come on screen.

Q So, serious question: When you talk to Queen Latifah, do you call her Queen Latifah or just Queen?

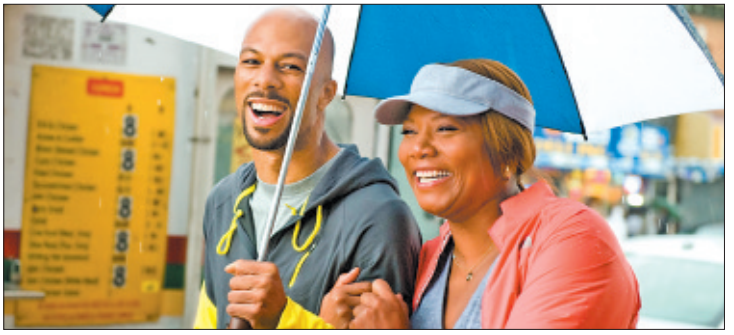
A I call her Latifah, and I got other names for her too. (Laughs).

Q Oh? Like what?

A I'm just tripping with you. But yeah, I call her Latifah more than anything. But you know, sometimes you just have to refer to her as a queen. She is a queen but she seems so much like a friend.

Q What's the most, um, common headline you've seen in articles about you that use your name?

A Typically, "uncommon man" or something like that. Obviously, I hope you use "extraordinary."



Hip-hop artist Common stars with Queen Latifah in Just Wright.

Not all sweats

- Common is known as one of the more well-dressed men in Hollywood, so it was important for his character to have a sense of fashion — and not just because he was afraid he would lose his reputation.

"I was very pleased with the style they had for my character," he says.

"They wanted to make sure he was shown as a distinguished NBA player who had class and style. A lot of people try to stereotype NBA guys and a lot of African-American characters just as one type, but we wanted him to have some class and be well-spoken, even though he came from kind of a street a background."

Watts tackles 'messed up' character

ANNE BRODIE
for Metro Canada

Naomi Watts' unsympathetic character in Rodrigo Garcia's Mother and Child would present a problem for an actress who wants to be liked.

But Watts' courageous refusal to worry about her image sets her apart. She routinely tackles tough parts like Elizabeth, an attorney who moves forward through like a shark, destroying everything in her way — she is not a nice person.

Watts says she found Elizabeth interesting from the first read, trusting Garcia's vision. In one scene, she leaves her panties in her neighbour's drawer after seducing her husband.

Watts sees what she did, not as a slap in the face, but a gift.

"It was just — 'No! Like NO, that's not who you are, and that's not who this man is. I know him better and you should know that. You need to know and save yourself!' It was so weird; it shakes you up, the way Rodrigo writes. These characters are not evil, but messed up.

"She shows repellent behaviours like running away from people, sleeping with her neighbour, and I wondered 'how does this not make her a villain?' The closer I looked, I realized she feels so much pain that she has to control everything."

Elizabeth's pain was rooted in knowledge that she was abandoned at birth; she didn't try to find her mother and erased her true past. Watts says Elizabeth missed out on that primal, basic mother/child bond, the one that is so strong in her own life.

"My relationship with my own mother is so important to me. It's the most meaningful one in my life, particularly as I didn't have another parent. She was my role model, my everything. ... She was twenty years old when she had me, right in her prime and she had to deal with me! No time for her to have her own life. She was just too young. Our relationship is like sisters."

Watts has two children with Liev Schreiber, Alexander Pete, 2, and Samuel Kai, 1. Motherhood has changed Watts in many ways, including the way she views her career.

"I'll watch my clock because I know I want to get home and put the kids to bed or pick them up from school. And before I was someone who would stay up to three in the morning working my character out."

Watts has two films premiering at Cannes this month — Fair Play, based on the book by Valerie Plame, about a CIA operative whose identify was revealed by a newspaper columnist and You Will Meet a Dark Stranger for Woody Allen.

Mother and Child opens next Friday

Tarantino leads Venice jury

FILM FEST The Venice Film Festival says Quentin Tarantino will head the jury that will award the coveted Golden Lion at this year's festival.

The festival called the director "one of the major creative figures in contemporary cinema" in an announcement of his appointment on Thursday. It runs from Sept. 1-10.

The festival cited Tarantino's highly original filmmaking style, work as a character actor, films that have launched and relaunched acting careers and his dedication to young filmmakers in his work as a producer.

Tarantino has directed such films as Inglourious Basterds, Pulp Fiction and Kill Bill. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Directors dig own cameos

InFocus
Richard Crouse
metronews.ca/infocus

"Alfred Hitchcock honed the art of the cameo to a science, turning up in 41 of his films."

John Favreau, left, and Alfred Hitchcock are two directors who have made appearances in their own films.

Iron Man 2 director Jon Favreau says the reason he cast himself in the role of Tony Stark's bodyguard Happy Hogan is "me being selfish and me wanting to be an actor in it."

One of his cast mates, however, thinks there might be an alternate reason. Gwyneth Paltrow, who plays Pepper Potts for the second time around in this weekend's Iron Man sequel, wonders if Favreau has a secret crush on her. You see, in the comic book series the film is based on Hogan and Potts become a romantic item.

"He marries this character in the comic book," she says, "so you never know. We'll see! If he wants to make out…"

Whatever the reason, many directors make a regular habit of placing themselves in their movies.

Alfred Hitchcock honed the art of the cameo to a science, turning up in 41 of his films.

Usually his appearances were limited to a quick hit, sometimes just as a silhouette, often as a face in the crowd, but a careful study of he films reveals the clever ways he inserted himself into the story.

The strangest cameo is one that may never have happened. In North by Northwest Hitch can be seen missing a bus during the opening credits but fans claim there is a second cameo later in the film.

Forty-four minutes there is a scene with a woman in a dress speaking to the police on a train which is rumoured to be the director in drag.

Hitchcock was so well known for his sneaky appearances in films he even made one following his death. In Psycho II, made three years after his passing, his famous silhouette can be seen in shadow just outside of Mother's bedroom.

The portly British director had the art of the cameo down to a science but he's not the only one.

The usually reclusive Terrence Malick plays an unexpected visitor at door, credited as Caller at Rich Man's House in his masterpiece Badlands and Oliver Stone can be glimpsed as the officer with a phone at the U.S. base's bunker when it is blown up in Platoon.

One of the most memorable but unrecognizable director cameos comes in Alien. When John Hurt looks into a transparent egg the facehugger was "played" by director Ridley Scott's gloved hands.

Richard Crouse's Movie Show can be seen every Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on the E! Channel; mrchaos33@hotmail.com.

Date Night
●●●½

REVIEW I'm not entirely sure where Date Night would be without Tina Fey and Steve Carell. After all, the two television comedians-turned-big screen stars take what is an overly familiar premise, directed by an often critically-aloof filmmaker, and turn it into a thoroughly entertaining evening at the multiplex. The pair play Phil and Claire, a bored, married New Jersey couple who try to spice up their weekly "date night" by spontaneously going to a trendy new restaurant in Manhattan. Finding the establishment booked solid, they take another couple's reservation only to get through the risotto before two corrupt cops with ties to the mafia escort them into an alley and demand a mysterious flash drive. From there, the mistaken marrieds end up on the run, a situation which generates comic moments.

How To Train Your Dragon

REVIEW Adapted from Cressida Cowell's children's novels, How To Train Your Dragon tells a simple story about a wimpy, young Viking named Hiccup (Canuck actor Jay Baruchel) who just can't live up to the expectations of his macho father (Gerard Butler). In fact, even when he sets out to slay a wounded dragon and gain his rightful place of honour, he instead makes a fire-breathing friend in the formidable beast. Meticulously crafted, Dragon's dark themes and stunning 3-D animation of battle sequences may even perhaps be a bit frightening to the littlest of ones. In fact, the superfluous amount of over-the-top flying sequences and overload of action upstage a fairly ordinary story.

Iron Man 2
●●½

REVIEW Iron Man 2 opens not with a bang but with a whimper, as Mickey Rourke's Ivan Vanko — later to become villain Whiplash, weeps over his dying father in a cluttered Moscow apartment. It's a big risk for an action tentpole, but one a filmmaker like Jon Favreau can make riding a wave of goodwill after the franchise's critically and commercially successful first chapter two years ago. Unfortunately, Favreau and company spend the next two hours squandering all that good will. The film's primary problem is that it sidelines its main hero and villain, both Stark and Whiplash sequestered in their labs tinkering while supporting characters carry on without them. But among those supporting characters left to move the story without them, there are some enjoyable nods.

Kick-Ass
●●●●½

REVIEW Matthew Vaughn's superhero flick Kick-Ass is an outrageous mix of stylized violence and dark humour that both gently mocks and pays homage to decades of superhero lore. The film follows a boring and anonymous teen who decides to become a crime-fighter known as Kick-Ass. Predictably, he's not very good at it. But a grainy cell phone video makes him an internet sensation, drawing the attention of a local crime boss who wants to take down the costumed vigilante harming his family business. Of course, that's not Kick-Ass but a scorned cop out for revenge who is played by Nicolas Cage and has turned his 11-year-old daughter into a deadly assassin.

A Nightmare on Elm Street

REVIEW Wes Craven's original A Nightmare on Elm Street is a classic, and rightfully so. Sam Bayer's mammoth budgeted remake is not. In fact it ain't much of anything. Recycling not only the plot but most of the original's set pieces, NOES 2010 stars a gaggle of vacant, pretty teens who battle sleep deprivation in order to evade the nightmare infiltrating, razor-gloved wrath of a scar tissue coated boogeyman named Freddy Krueger (Watchman's Jackie Earle Haley). Haley is poorly used and lacks enough menace for the role of a homicidal, undead child molester.

WARNING: You'll probably end up tearing out this page and taking it to work.

Don't blame me if your productivity falls to zero.

People often ask me which music websites I visit the most. Herewith is a list I simply cannot do without.

AntiMusic: The website is a little kludgy and I hate the "pop-under" ads that come with it, so I subscribe to the free daily email newsletter — delivered before noon ET each day — which is extremely well done (anitmusic.com).

Chartattack: Canada's Chart magazine lives online with an excellent news section that often digs remarkably deep. Especially helpful when it comes to Canadian music news (chartattack.com/new).

Crazed Hits: Billed as "the music industry's leading A&R site," it's used by labels, talent scouts, managers and bleeding edge hipsters to find out who's new, who's hot and who's been signed (crazedhits.com).

The Daily Swarm: An aggregator of music news from newspapers, magazines, websites and blogs. There are other sites that do this, but few have the reach and variety. Just beware that some links may be NSFW (thedailyswarm.com).

Global Music: Another news aggregator but with an emphasis on gathering music news from around the planet. They offer a daily newsletter, too (globalmusic.net).

Heard on TV: Liked that song played at the end of Grey's Anatomy last night but frustrated by not knowing who did it? Go here heardontv.com. Good alternates: TV Show Music (tvshowmusic.com) and Tune Find (tunefind.com)

Hypebot: An excellent site for news and analysis regarding music, technology and new media from around the world. Perfect for the seriously geeky music fan who wants really get into what's going on from the business side (hypebot.com/hypebot).

Music Ally: Yeah, the name is a pun, but the content is very deep and insightful, even though it tends to focus on issues within the U.K. and European music industry (musically.com/blog).

PunkNews.org: Heavy on the punk rock scene — which they cover better than almost anyone else —but they also cover other genres (punknews.org).

Finally, there's AllTop, an aggregator of headlines from dozens and dozens of music sites (http://music.alltop.com).

Nice to see that the site I spend all my time curating, ExploreMusic (exploremusic.com), is right at the top. If you'd like to see more of my favourite sites, I have an expanded list today at ExploreMusic.com

Power pop revival

New Pornographers come Together to make new album

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Canada

"There are no more interesting rock and roll bands," writes American novelist Rick Moody in The New Pornographers artist bio. "(The New Pornographers) are also unable, it seems, to resist the challenge to make a perfect album, a form so dead."

If there's any controversial comment to make in a bio, it's probably to say there's nothing good happening in pop music anymore. Carl Newman, The New Pornographers' singer, clarifies the author's statement. "He didn't mean it in an insulting way," says ex-Vancouverite and now New York-based artist. "He was saying it's a noble gesture, trying to work in a format so many people think is dead."

It's true, Pornographers-like power pop — which draws from the Beach Boys, The Kinks and Big Star, among other punchy, harmony-laden rock bands — isn't the rage these days, but it's far from obsolete. Newman knows that, but he says classic pop has gone underground. "If Pet Sounds came out today it would be this weird alternative record," he says.

If anything The New Pornographers' music has kept the genre top of mind for many music fans. The band isn't pushing power pop into the mainstream — "I've had an underground career," he says — but with thousands of records sold worldwide, and veteran acts like Animal Collective and new bands such as Library Voices playing more pop-focused music they've had an influence.

The band actually took a step back from their polished distorted tunes on their last disc, Challengers, in favour of softer, melodic sounds. Their new record, Together, combines that subdued band — which also features Neko Case and Destroyer's Dan Bejar — with their louder selves.

"It exemplifies my contrary nature," says Newman, explaining how a song like Crash Years, a bubbly Case track winds up on the same album as the quiet, lo-fi piano song Valkyrie in the Roller Disco.

Newman admits that the disc is a bit of history lesson into the New Pornographers music. "It does take a lot of different things we've done," he says, adding that the only difference between how he wrote this disc and the previous ones was that Together was based around riffs he had in his mind.

"If Pet Sounds came out today it would be this weird alternative record."
Carl Newman

"More than the other albums, this was built around some kind of guitar or cello line that runs through a verse."

The band will tour behind Together for a while, but once that's over, in the past, Newman has released solo albums. He says it's unlikely he'll write another AC Newman disc for a while. "I want to do something different. Something that doesn't sound anything like my solo stuff or the New Pornographers," he says. "Or maybe I'm just talking out of my ass."

From the Sex Pistols' first appearance on television nearly 35 years ago, Johnny Rotten has built a sturdy reputation as a difficult interview subject.

And although a question about an erstwhile bandmate in his recently reunited Public Image Ltd., resulted in him telling this reporter to "f— off" about 10 minutes into the conversation, he didn't hang up the phone.

Instead, the man who was born John Lydon spent the next 20 minutes talking somewhat enthusiastically about re-forming the band he began after the implosion of the Pistols, and opining on all things from beauty products to Vampire Weekend.

After publishing a volume of his memoirs in the mid '90s that dealt with his time in the Pistols, the singer promised he was working on addressing the Public Image years, but right now the guy who once snarled about "no future" sounds like he's actually looking forward to a happy one.

"I came out of the starting gates firing on all cylinders, and I never looked back, so my songwriting proficiency has never been really lacking." John Lydon

PiL plays the Phoenix Friday night

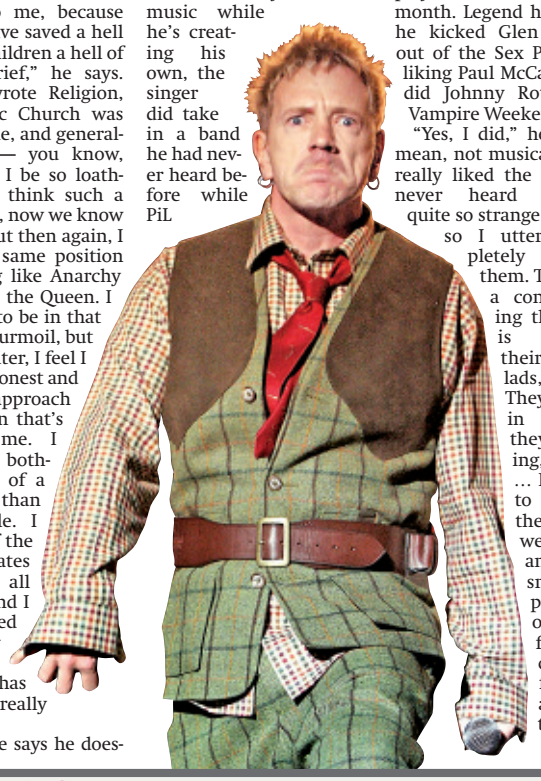
"I've had to put it on the back burner because of this work," he says of the book. "I'm in no mad dog rush to finish it, because PiL is by far, far and away, an uncompleted project."

He says putting together a concise setlist has been one of the biggest challenges.

"Seriously, we're really having problems trying to cut the set down to just two hours, because there's so much there," he says. "But as we progress here, and get people to start thinking about what they think PiL is, it will get us in the position where we could tour almost constantly. I would hope so. But the general ambition is towards recording immediately on completion of tours."

And how has the material aged? The singer says mining his old material has been gratifying, in particular the 1978 song, Religion, which criticizes the Catholic Church.

"It's a shame no one was listening to me, because we could have saved a hell of a lot of children a hell of a lot of grief," he says. "When I wrote Religion, the Catholic Church was just so on me, and generally society — you know, 'How could I be so loathsome as to think such a thing?' Well, now we know the truth. But then again, I was in the same position with a song like Anarchy or God Save the Queen. I don't want to be in that position of turmoil, but as a songwriter, I feel I have to be honest and I have to approach the situation that's bothering me. I tend to get bothered a hell of a lot earlier than most people. I came out of the starting gates firing on all cylinders, and I never looked back, so my songwriting proficiency has never been really lacking."



Though he says he doesn't listen to any new music while he's creating his own, the singer did take in a band he had never heard before while PiL played Coachella last month. Legend has it that he kicked Glen Matlock out of the Sex Pistols for liking Paul McCartney, so did Johnny Rotten like Vampire Weekend?

"Yes, I did," he says. "I mean, not musically, but I really liked the ideas. I'd never heard anything quite so strange and silly, so I utterly, completely applaud them. They have a concept going there that is uniquely theirs. Brave lads, really. They believe in what they're doing, I hope. … I warmed to them as their set went on, and a wry smile appeared upon my face. I feel quite affectionate about them."

Hope in a jar?

•With so many of his punk rock colleagues passing away, most recently the Pistols' manager Malcolm McLaren, we asked Lydon his secret to living so long. "I view myself as only 50 years young with a few years of short change," he says. "All's I can think is that my un-corrupt way of life is proof of something. I'm relatively wrinkle-free, and the only beauty products I've ever really gotten here is Hope in a Jar. That's quite literally the name of it." We then ask him how he does his hair, surely that must be a beauty product? ""Oh, you think that makes me look beautiful? You can be my friend for life. I've always spiked my hair, from an early age, because that's what I've liked best, and it's quite hilarious to me that there's been just so many people following my hairdos.

Bachman & Turner drop new track

BANDS Randy Bachman and Fred Turner are giving fans a sneak peek at their first new material in years.

Bachman & Turner have posted their new track, Rock n' Roll is the Only Way Out, on their website as a free download. Fans need to enter an email address and the new tune will then be offered up for downloading.

Bachman & Turner's first new album in 14 years is slated for release on Sept. 7.

The '70s Winnipeg stalwarts authored such hits as You Ain't Seen Nothing Yet, Takin' Care of Business and Roll on Down the Highway when they were still called Bachman-Turner Overdrive, a name that is now the subject of a lawsuit.

Bachman and Turner announced they were reforming last year and launched a world tour in Winnipeg in December.

Don't get caught speeding while Living In Your Car

PHOTO PROVIDED

John Ralston plays Steve Unger, an executive who has lost everything, in Living In Your Car, pictured here with actress Mariah Horner as Kate Unger.

As a director on Curb Your Enthusiasm, David Steinberg helped nail the fictional Larry David's bull-headed sense of entitlement.

Now, the Winnipeg-born TV veteran is applying his comedy touch to the self-serving struggles of another arrogant character — fallen CEO Steve Unger — in the HBO Canada series, Living In Your Car.

"I guess rich and obnoxious is going to be my signature as a director," a jovial Steinberg admits in a phone interview from his home in Los Angeles.

Living In Your Car premieres Friday on HBO Canada

"Because Larry is that way, certainly, and (Steve) is that way as well. Larry is much more outrageous in Curb than (Steve) is, but not really. It's just that the tone is different."

The half-hour satire, which Steinberg also co-executive produces, stars John Ralston as a high-flying executive who loses everything when he's caught cooking the books. Steve cuts a deal to get out of prison early, but finds that his wife and 15-year-old daughter (played by Ingrid Kavelaars and Mariah Horner) have kicked him out of the house and that none of his former colleagues want anything to do with him.

Homeless and desperate to regain all that he's lost, Steve clings to the last vestige of his former self — his cherished luxury sedan.

The series was written by playwright George F. Walker, Dani Romain and Joseph Kay back in the days of Enron.

"And then of course there was all this new stuff," says Walker, referring to the subsequent fall of corrupt investment advisor Bernie Madoff.

"Which means it could be about anyone. But the thing that they all had in common, the guy we had in mind, was that they were charming. They believed what they were doing was good, they believed in trickle-down economics. Anything that was good for them was good for everyone and that this was just a little blip on their recovery road to success and even greater success. That belief in themselves, and that kind of childlike innocence mixed with a kind of almost devil-may-care foolishness is sort of what we came up with."

Walker, whose previous acclaimed series include HBO Canada's The Line and CBC-TV's This is Wonderland, says Steve's earnest optimism is what makes the disgraced exec worth cheering for, and laughing at, despite his many faults.

Ralston says the show's quick pace helps to heighten the comedy as well. He notes that rapid-fire dialogue zips between characters who clip each others words, finish each other's thoughts.

"The stakes are so high so the delivery is fairly quick," says Ralston, who just finished a TV movie of his other series, the Family Channel show Life With Derek.

"This is a really jam-packed show. (It's) one of the wonderful thing about cable these days and this whole idea of that half-hour format, which is a true 30-minute half hour. I think we're just about three or so scenes short of a one-hour network show."

Walker says that the dense material is a sign of the times.

"Our scripts are like 40 some-odd pages. That's long, that's many more pages (than usual), but when we started doing this people would go, 'Oh, that's so long.' We'd actually go, 'That's old TV. This stuff moves.'"

Gossip Girl goes to college

Based on the popular young adult books by Cecily von Ziegesar, Gossip Girl, has become a launching pad for young designers as much as it has for young actors.

With the third season finale approaching on May 17, co-creator Stephanie Savage sat down with Metro to talk about the challenges of taking characters to college and dealing with the pesky paparazzi while filming in New York City.

Q How has it been taking the Gossip Girl characters into their college years? That's famously where a lot of teen series flounder.

A I think the challenge of taking show the from high school to college was something that we tried to address from the very beginning of the show because Josh Schwartz and I had already gone through it on the O.C. and knew firsthand what a challenge that was. So from the beginning on Gossip Girl, we tried to make the franchise of the show much more New York City and much less high school. We actually pride ourselves on the fact they we never had a classroom set. So the challenge that we really had is more in terms of getting the characters to be able to stay in the same world and be connected with each other without that device of the high school that they all attend, and we're still kind of working out the kinks.

Q Does the media attention affect how you write the show?

A If we have, like, a certain two people kissing, we will absolutely think about making sure that that scene happens on set and not on a location because we don't want it reported in the media. But that's hard, too, because maybe you do want people kissing in Central Park with a beautiful backdrop and not in Blair's bedroom, but you make that choice.

Q You seem to have had no trouble getting big fashion designers to let you use their work.

A We have a great relationship with designers, where they love to have their clothes on our show, which is such a blessing for us, and we love to have them. We have designers who are fans enough that they want to play themselves on the show. So it's great when Eleanor Waldorf is having a fashion show and Michael Kors will show up.

Mom's doc

FILM Award-winning documentarian Maureen Judge's new work, Mom's Home, will be shown on the Knowledge Network on Tuesday. Mom's Home is the final installment in her vérité documentary trilogy, exploring themes of love, betrayal and acceptance in parent and adult child relationships.

Mom's Home is a funny, compassionate and tension fraught one-hour documentary about aging mothers who move in with their grown daughters. It follows three pairs of mothers and daughters, who, despite their life experience, are still wrestling with their conflicting emotions, difficulties and sometimes ill-fated commitment to do what's best.

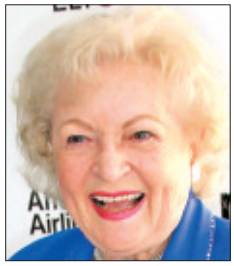
White set for SNL gig

The night before Mother's Day is going to be the mother of all Saturday Nights: TV icon Betty White will be the guest host of Saturday Night Live, with musical guest Jay-Z and a cast reunion of former female SNL stars Tina Fey, Amy Poehler, Maya Rudolph, Molly Shannon and Rachel Dratch.

Does that mean that, Jay-Z aside, we're going to see SNL's first all-female ensemble?

"I certainly hope not," White said in a phone interview. "I'll have to go around hitting on every member of the crew."



Betty White

A typically bawdy comment from the suddenly hot again 88-year-old veteran of Password, Mary Tyler Moore and Golden Girls, whose appearance on SNL was largely motivated by an avid Facebook and Twitter campaign.

Even then she was reluctant, though was eventually persuaded by her agent. "They're just so New York, and I'm so L.A.," she frets. "Honestly, I'm scared to death.

"I haven't a clue what I'm going to be doing. But I have been promised I won't have to do any nudity."

DareArts honouree comedian and actor Eugene Levy and wife Deborah Divine.

Event emcee Marci Ien.

YOUNG LEADERS were treated to a night of glitz and glamour as the DareArts Foundation presented its eighth annual leadership awards at the Liberty Grand. The capacity filled crowd was treated to a pre-reception cocktail hour that included a silent auction and celebrity-style red carpet. However, it was during the dinner hour that were guests enjoyed inspiring words of good works by the young recipients and their mentors.

Loyalty Can Be Costly

Shopping Around Still The Key To Saving On Car Insurance

How Much Is Your Loyalty Discount Really Worth?

If you're like most consumers, you worry that switching insurance companies means losing your "loyalty discount". The truth is that switching insurance companies may cause you to lose your loyalty discount (if you had one in the first place), but that doesn't necessarily mean you'll pay more for car insurance or that you can't save a bundle in the end. The fact is, some insurance companies may provide a small discount on your premium if you've been with them for a long time – but that small discount can quickly become irrelevant if another company has a rate for you that is significantly less than what you're currently paying. After all, what good is 5% off of an annual rate of $1,500 (a $75 savings) if you could pay $1,100 (a $400 savings) with another company?

How Much Do Rates Really Differ Across Companies?

The rates charged by different insurance companies to insure the same driver, with the same car, for the same coverage, can vary by hundreds and even thousands of dollars. And with so many insurance companies providing car insurance in Ontario, odds are you are not currently insured with the company that offers the best rate for your driving profile. This is where InsuranceHotline.com can help by providing an independent, unbiased rate comparison from over 30 top insurance companies to find you the lowest rate available for your profile. Even better, once your lowest rate is found, InsuranceHotline.com can connect you with a licensed insurance broker or agent to seal the deal. It's Fast, Safe and FREE.

Don't Be Fooled By Others Offering To "Compare Quotes"

Unlike most of its competitors, InsuranceHotline.com does not sell insurance, is not a licensed broker or agent, and is not owned in whole or in part by an insurance company. This allows InsuranceHotline.com to be completely unbiased when providing insurance quotes and keeps its focus solely on finding the lowest insurance rates for consumers. By contrast, most websites offering to "compare insurance quotes" are owned by or affiliated with insurance brokers or agents and are therefore only capable of quoting rates from the limited number of insurance companies they represent, typically no more than 4 or 5.

Rate Comparison

Driving Record	Lowest Price	Highest Price	Savings
Clean Record	$958	$2,213	$1,255
1 Ticket	$1,018	$2,552	$1,534
1 Accident	$1,849	$3,753	$1,904

InsuranceHotline.com finds this rate for drivers – for FREE!

Metro's 7th Heaven: Metro taps what's hot right now

1 George Re-cut

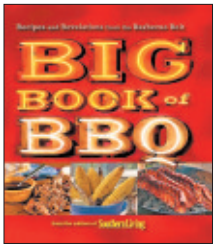
POP CULTURE Julia Louis-Dreyfus may have gotten a star on Hollywood's Walk of Fame — typo and all — but it's Jason Alexander's character, George Costanza, who is getting the attention these days thanks to this You Tube hit. The trailer rearranges the neurotic Seinfeld character's scenes into a dramatic movie trailer. youtube.com/watch?v=_Crw85HvIFs

2 Jack Daniels

DRINKS No more having to mix your own JD and cola; the granddaddy of Tennessee whiskey has created a line of ready-to-drink cocktails — Jack & Cola, Jack & Lemonade, and Jack & Iced Tea.

3 Big Book of BBQ

FOOD With most of the country finally in the grip of spring, the smell of BBQ-ing is again wafting its way through Canadian neighbourhoods — making it the perfect time to pick up this collection from the editors of Southern Living. Not only does it contain recipes, but also a list of the best 'Q locations in the U.S.



4 Machete

MOVIES In time for Cinco De Mayo, filmmaker Robert Rodriguez extended his fake trailer which appeared as part of his 2007 Grindhouse collaboration with Quentin Tarantino. The trailer stars an impressive list, including Cheech Marin, Con Johnson, Jessica Alba, Steven Segal and Robert De Niro. youtube.com/watch?v=MKhChMHhBN8

5 Other People's Rejection Letters

BOOK Those with a voyeuristic bent will love this look at the letters people have received ending their relationships, having job offers turned down, and even killing their careers.

From Congo, With Love

When: Friday & Saturday
Where: Trinity Bellwoods Park

After taking photos of wispy models like Kate Moss, goddesses like Kylie and prominent figures like the Queen, British portrait photographer Rankin is lending his lens to help Oxfam Canada host a free photo to exhibit that raises awareness about the war-torn nation of Congo.

Final Flash

When: Friday
Where: Horseshoe Tavern

From the size of those muttonchops, you might take Montreal's Final Flash for burnout '70s-loving rock dudes. You wouldn't be far wrong; while their brand-new debut, Homeless (out May 4) has a hazy me-decade feel

Man Man

When: Sunday, 8 p.m.
Where: Lee's Palace

Whether it's the beards or maybe just the swords, the Philadelphia group sounds like percussive pirates rapping and pillaging instruments

Diaries gives SATC fans a young Carrie

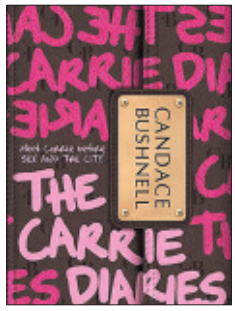
HEATHER BUCHAN
for Metro Toronto

Sex and the City 2 isn't hitting theatres until the end of the month, but for Carrie Bradshaw fans, the release of The Carrie Diaries — author Candace Bushnell's teen prequel to her original 1997 novel Sex and the City — should serve as a good fix.

It's Carrie's coming-of-age story and takes readers back to 1979 and her life as a high school senior in small-town Connecticut.

"I tried to capture the emotional realities of being 17," says Bushnell, 51, over the phone from New York, where she is kicking off a whirlwind book North America tour to launch this, her sixth novel. "I had an especially great time writing The Carrie Diaries because I love the character Carrie."

Not only does Diaries focus on Carrie's first love, but it also touches on her evolving sense of fashion and her dreams of one day becoming a writer.



The Carrie Diaries.

Like her character Carrie, Bushnell grew up dreaming of being a writer and living in Manhattan. "It was something that I dreamed of doing since I was a little kid," she says. "And, like Carrie, when I was in high school, I knew what I wanted to do, but I had no idea how to get there."

Similarly to Carrie, Bushnell moved to the Big Apple at 18, and became a columnist while struggling to pay the bills. As her 20s rolled into her 30s, Bushnell also became (like Carrie) a bona fide New York celebrity, dating a bevy of wealthy bachelors (including publishing giant Ronald A. Galotti who is rumoured to be the inspiration for Mr. Big).

Aside from her career-defining Sex and the City, Bushnell has penned several other smash-hit, chick-lit novels, including Four Blondes, Trading Up, Lipstick Jungle, which was also adapted into a TV series, and One Fifth Avenue.

So what has the women behind Carrie Bradshaw learned about love? "It's what you bring and it's your attitude," she says. "You always hear people say, 'oh, I have to find my other half,' but you kind of have to be a whole to begin with."

Bushnell is already working on a follow up to Diaries. "It's (Carrie's) first summer in New York and gosh, I think anybody's first summer in the big city is full of adventure," she said.

Revolution of a reputation

Philadelphia looking to future with young, vibrant population

DOROTHY ROBINSON
Metro World News

METRO WORLD NEWS

Modern Philly looks nothing like the world once portrayed by the movie Rocky.

The Liberty Bell continues to be a big tourist attraction in Philly.

Far from its rough reputation of the 1970s, the Philly of today is a place bursting with young artisans.

Metro finds the places to stay, play and drink.

WHERE TO WAKE UP
Hotel Palomar
(hotelpalomarphiladelphia.com)

Palomar is the current, must-stay spot in Philadelphia, in the city's historic Architects Building.

With complimentary wine hour each night in chic lobby, rooms from $159 and a beautifully-detailed restaurant Square 1682, you won't want to leave.

WHERE TO SPEND THE MORNING
Walking tour

After a coffee at Parc (227 S. 18th St.) overlooking the beautiful Rittenhouse Square you should walk the cobblestone streets to the birthplace of both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution: Independence Hall (5th and Chestnut Streets.) The Liberty Bell across the road is also a must.

WHERE TO LUNCH
Garces Trading Company
(garcestradingcompany.com)

A gourmet market and cafe by famed Philadelphia restaurateur Jose Garces, the delicious sandwiches ($10) and gourmet pizzas ($20) can be enjoyed in or out of the restaurant. Wine to go is available if you feel like a picnic.

Visit a modern Philly

WHERE TO SPEND THE AFTERNOON
South Philly

There's the gritty 1970s Philly of Sly Stallone's Rocky and there's the Philly of now — a place bursting with young artisans. To see both, take a stroll in South Philly where the Italian Market — old-school cafes, delis and bakeries — mix with the young designer boutiques Passyunk Avenue.

WHERE TO HAVE DINNER
Vetri
(vetriristorante.com)

Reservations at Vetri are very hard to come by and with good reason. In an old townhouse, there aren't many tables and their menu of rustic Italian fare is incredible. Not only one of the best restaurants in Philly, it's also lauded as one of the best in America.

HOW TO SPEND THE NIGHT
Johnny Brenda's
(johnnybrendas.com)

Johnny Brenda's, in up-and-coming Fishtown, is the place to see all the beautiful artist-types and catch a great live music or spoken word act. With a great selection of the hometown, craft brews on tap ($4) and a chill laid-back ambience, it's a taste of modern Philadelphia,

The edgy actress gets edgy in front of crowds

GETTY IMAGES

UM, YEAH. WOULDN'T YOU TOO? She's the heroine of the blockbuster Twilight franchise — and gets to make out with Robert Pattinson — but Kristen Stewart doesn't always put on a happy face at red carpet events and other appearances, usmagazine.com reports.

"People say I'm miserable all the time," Stewart, 20, says in the June issue of Elle magazine.

She explains, "It's not that I'm miserable. It's just that somebody's yelling at me ... I literally, sometimes, have to keep myself from crying," on the red carpet.

"It's a physical reaction to the energy that's thrown at you."

Then there's her demeanor on late night talk shows or awards fest.

"It's funny that when I go onstage to accept an award, they think I'm nervous, uncomfortable, and awkward," Stewart quips, "and I am — but those are bad words for them."

The edgy star also resents losing her privacy to worldwide fame.

"Somebody knocked on my hotel room door and asked for a light, then said that they were a big fan. I was like, 'Do you really need me to light your cigarette? How do you know what room I'm in?' I can't be by myself and I like being by myself."

Bombshell is empathetic

WHEN IT COMES TO JESSE JAMES SLEEPING WITH DOGS. IT'S NOT WHAT YOU THINK. OK, MAYBE IT ACTUALLY IS Michelle "Bombshell" McGee, the other woman in the cheating scandal that led to the demise of Sandra Bullock and Jesse James' marriage, claims that Bullock is at least partially to blame for James having an affair.

"They slept with nine dogs in the bed," McGee told Howard Stern during his radio show.

"She liked to sleep with all the dogs in the bed. I feel bad for her, I do."

His brain was bleeding

BUT BRET IS BACK IN ACTION. LET'S JUST HOPE IT'S NOT TOO MUCH ACTION Bret Michaels may have just spent 10 days in the ICU, but the rock star isn't complaining. Instead, he says he's feeling "lucky to be alive," people.com reports.

In the new issue of People magazine, Michaels, 47, who suffered a subarachnoid hemorrhage (bleeding at the base of his brain stem) on April 21, speaks for the first time about his ordeal, including a dramatic moment when he first arrived at the hospital.

In the emergency room, the rocker — dad to Raine, 9, and Jorja, 5 — recalls being asked by a doctor if he had kids, and the doctor telling him to have them brought to the hospital.

"And I said in these exact words, 'Am I dying? If I'm dying, I want to see my kids, but if I have a chance, I don't want them to see me in this condition.'"

Michaels is currently at a rehabilitation facility for physical therapy, and is expected to make a full recovery — something his doctor says only occurs in 10 to 20 per cent of all cases.

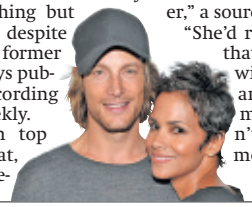
It's not all light and air

THERE'S ENVY AND EGO IN THERE, TOO Sources say the breakup between Halle Berry and Gabriel Aubry was anything but amicable, despite what the former couple says publicly, according to Us Weekly.



And on top of that, Berry reportedly harangued Aubry about his career for months before they split.

"Halle called him a loser," a source says.

"She'd rub it in his face that she's an Oscar-winning actress and he's just a model. He couldn't take it anymore."

Tick tock goes Jessica's baby clock

TIME TO SPROG UP AGAIN Jessica Alba wants to be a mother again and thinks she "should do it soon," femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The actress has one child, 23-month old daughter Honor Marie, with her husband Cash Warren, but is broody and wants them to expand their family — either by getting pregnant or adopting.

When asked if she was thinking of having more children, Jessica told Tatler magazine: "Of course! And I feel like I should do it soon ... You bring these kids into the world, so you might as well participate."

He's still missing Reese's pieces

ONCE YOU HAVE A TASTE IT'S HARD TO PUT THE BAG DOWN Though they broke up months ago and she's moved on to a new boyfriend, Jake Gyllenhaal is reportedly still hung up on Reese Witherspoon, according to Popeater.

"Reese was without any doubt the love of Jake's life. He took the breakup hard and still isn't ready to move on yet," a source says. "As much as he would love to have remained friends and see her and her children, it was just too painful. They have little contact with each other, which is probably for the best."

Yep, it's back on

BUT NOT THAT ON Coy as ever, Jude Law may have dropped a hint to Access Hollywood that he's ready to propose to Sienna Miller again. When asked if they were engaged, Law said, "Not at the moment. Not at the moment. That's all I can say." The pair called off their initial engagement in 2006 after Law was caught cheating on Miller with his children's nanny. "I'm very happy. I'm very happy to be happy," Law said of the couple's reconciliation.

Metro Recipe of the Day

Jamaican Jerked Chicken Salad

INGREDIENTS:

4 scallions, thinly sliced
3 cloves garlic, minced
1/4 tsp dried thyme
1 tsp black pepper
1 tsp ground allspice
1 tsp salt
4 tbsp red wine vinegar
2 tbsp Dijon mustard
2 tsp dark brown sugar
1 lb skinless, boneless chicken breasts
1 tbsp olive oil
2 cups pineapple chunks
4 kiwis, peeled and cut into wedges
1 large red pepper, cut into matchsticks
1 cup jicama matchsticks

METHOD:

1. In large bowl, stir together garlic, thyme, black pepper, allspice, half of scallions and 1/2 tsp salt. Stir in 2 tbsp of vinegar, 1 tbsp mustard, and brown sugar. Add chicken, rubbing mixture into meat. Cover and set aside.

2. In separate bowl, whisk together remaining vinegar, mustard, 1/4 tsp salt and oil. Add remaining scallions, pineapple, kiwis, red pepper and jicama, and toss.

3. Preheat broiler. Broil chicken 15 cm from heat, 4 minutes per side, or until cooked through. When cool enough to handle, slice chicken on diagonal. Add to bowl and toss.
